Dear parents/ guardians,

We are hoping to go on an exciting school trip for our next topic: Darwin's Delights!

The children will perform their own fossil dig and draw conclusions about how dinosaurs looked in this hands-on workshop at The Natural History Museum, London. In this workshop, pupils will perform their own fossil dig, uncovering mystery specimens from excavation boxes. They will also observe and draw bone structures to interpret the species their fossil came from.

As the Natural History museum is in London, our trip will be an early start and late finish, so that the children get the best experience possible. Details will be sent for this once the booking has been confirmed.

As with all trips, we are asking for a voluntary contribution to cover the costs of: the coach, the workshop and museum entrance. The cost for this trip will be £17.00 per child.

Due to the museums extensive cancellation policy, (they are extremely popular) we must give them 4 weeks' notice and ask for all contributions to be in by 7th February 2018. We know this is a quick turn around and appreciate your support with this; it is unfortunate that our spring terms are so short.

We thank you for your cooperation and look forward to an exciting day, filled with learning!

Kind regards,

Miss Smith & Miss Litowczyk
